

Helping federal agencies accelerate innovation through public participation.

Citizenscience.gov is an official government website designed to accelerate the use of crowdsourcing and citizen science across the U.S. government. The site provides a portal to three key assets for federal practitioners: a searchable catalog of federally supported citizen science projects, a toolkit to assist with designing and maintaining projects, and a gateway to a federal community of practice to share best practices.

Explore Projects

Plan Your Projects

Join Our Community

See What's Happening in Federal Citizen Science

Follow Us on Twitter

CitizenScienceGov @FedCitSci

Annual survey results show 63% of county, 80% of municipal leaders say #citizenengagement is a top goal. More: 21centurystate.com/articles/for-l...

20 Apr

CitizenScienceGov @FedCitSci

On our April watch list: A former @NASA chief scientist narrates series on #citizenscience works, including projects with federal roots.

20 Apr

CitizenScienceGov Retweeted

Cit Sci Association

Embed

View on Twitter